

*Four years in a picture book.
Impossible.
One year. Maybe, at least more possible.
The year was 1965 mostly,
1966 also.
The place was Pratt, mostly.*

Penn Station

Gazing out in contemplation overhead the Pratt plantation...

leaving out each non-existent rose
I strove to find a place
for resting eyes
which, strained from Art,
sought nesting:
tired of the model's plastic pose.
What should suddenly confront me,
bulging from a back wall bluntly,
but a sign portentiously disposed!
Symbol of the ever after, blank of
tears, devoid of laughter,
Infinity depicted on its nose.

*The place was Pratt, mostly.
A way of life, alive, aware.
Everything you've absorbed and become,
hopefully what you will be.
An experience in living.
The in-between yesterday and today.
The end of a world, and a beginning.
You came to grow, and by growing,
you begin to see.*
